The Famous Julian Elltinge in "The Fascinating Widow at the Valentine Theatre, February 22-23-21.

Julian Eltinge, famous for his feminine characterizations, will be seen at the Valentine theater Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with a Saturday matinee, Feb. 22-23-24, in his new comedy with maste, "The make speeches as coolly as they make Fascinating Widow, which is from conversation. In some cases this may the pen of the prolific writers of wholly able to cast off their nervous-"Madame Sherry," "The Girl of My ness. Sometimes it persists only in Dreams," and other successes in the the form of a mannerism, attractive or musical field. Of course, any man otherwise, but some old parliamentaris can masquerade as a woman, but to act, sing and dance like Julian Eltinge in the new comedy without even a change in his voice, is a difficult undertaking. He is the most talked of actor in America for the entered the house of commons as Lord reason that he makes women curious. when he appears in the smartest of by prefacing his malden speech with feminine frocks. He wants to matry Margaret Leffingwell, the charming daughter of the matron of the girl's section of the co-educational institution. Oswald Wentworth, an unsupportable sophomore, is also a suitor for the hand of Margaret Leffingwell. Oswald has been spreading provokes that youth to smite his offending rival who decides to have his pugilistic rival arrested, and on the hip or be thrown back. the athletic student is compelled to flee. He is not gone long, however, when he returns so completely disguised as a fascinating widow, that even the chams whom he has let into the secret, rub their eyes in amaze folded cambric handkerchief, but only ment and doubt whether the captivating young woman is really the student companion.

Throughout the play, Mr. Ellingis given unlimited latitude to exhibihis marvelous powers as well a graceful dancing and pleasing sing ing. He is also given opportunity to display a wardrobe whose cost amounts into the thousands.

Keep Memento of Great Artist.

On the facade of the Palazzo Vecchio at Florence, to the right of the central entrance, the profile of a man's head is traced on the marble, the authorship of which is ascribed to Michael Angelo. The story runs that he and a friend made a bet as to which of them would draw a head best with their backs to the wall, a bet easily won by Michael Angelo, for he traced a perfect profile, whereas the other produced only a wavering, imperfect outline. The story further relates that the tool used was a nail! Both drawings are carefully

PUBLIC NERVOUS IN

MANY WORLD-FAMED SPEAKERS NEVER OVERCOME THIS.

With Some It Persists as Mannerisms -Yawn and Handkerchief of Late Duke of Devonshire-Gladstone's Peculiar Actions,

Persons who are unaccustomed to speak in public believe that their nervousness is solely due to their inexperience, and that public men can be so, but few speakers are ever able ans never escape from the tremors and terrors which shook them when their maiden speech was delivered.

The late duke of Devenshire is usually spoken of as the perfect type of the impassive Englishman. When he Caveudish, he distinguished himself means as languid in fact as he was in appearance.

When he rose to speak he would lean one arm on the nearest of the two iron-bound boxes on the table between the front benches. After a slight besitation and a few quiet words, the other hand would steal to the tail pocket of his coat and emerge holding a neatly-folded white cambric handkerchief. Without unfolding i stories of Hal Blake's escapade which he would gently rub the corners of his mouth, and this done, the hand, still holding the handkerchief, would rest

> Sitting near him, one could observe that the grip on his handkerchief tightened, and that the muscles of the hand were in continuous action. At the close of his speech the hand opened, and one saw not the clean, a solid, greasy ball, which was quickly returned to the pocket. Here was the safety valve for the impassive nobleman's nervousness.

> Gladstone was one in whom nervousness had become mannerism. When he rose to speak he began with a few gracious words on the speech which was about to follow, or some pointed remark as to the character and importance of the subject. In his earlier days this was, no doubt to "get his breath."

> His next act was to raise his right hand over his head with the thumb bent down and gently scratch his skull. That is rather common among public speakers. The third action of Mr. Gladstone was his peculiar and individual sign. Throwing his arms downward by his side, he would with his fingers seize the cuffs of his coat and draw these down over his shirt cuffs so as to conceal them complete ly. The ordinary practice is just the reverse, the desire being to expose and not conceal the white linen of the shirt cuffs. These were the invariable preludes to the great commoner's speeches .- Pall Mall Maga-

GAUDY FUNERALS IN BURMAH

With Ballet and Band the Rich Burmese Are Paraded to Their Tombs.

They have gorgeous funerals in Rangoon, the capital of Burmah, India. When a rich Buman is buried, for instance, the funeral procession might be compared to the street parade of some circus. First comes a kind of ballet of Burmese in bright colored silks, dancing the wildest kinds of contortions, anything but graceful. Next there is the hearse, drawn by several black horses. Oddly enough, in some cases it will be a huge black English hearse with attendants in black and white girdles, instead of the usual gaudy Burmese hearse, with its models of dancers and race horses. Following this a brass band will blare out some lively tune, to which the ballet can dance, the whole being about as appropriate to the solemnities of such an occasion as would be a dirge to enliven a bridge-whist party. Stringing along after the band will be a mile, more or less, of ox-carts with quaint tops of colored matting, each crowded with "gay mourners" who are provided with no end of refreshments. A big Burman in brilliant pink silk and carrying a large fan usually plays the part of master of ceremonles, his chief duty being to see that all are happy. As companion he will have a muscular chap bearing a huge case of bottles containing drinks for the whole party. Luckily, since dead men tell no tales, it is also true that they find no fault; and so these grotesque funerals are never interrupted by the box occupants in whose honor the spectacles are arranged.

Most disfiguring skin eruptions, crofula, pimples, rashes, etc., are ine to impure blood. Burdock Blood Bitters is a cleansing blood Makes you clear-eyed, clearbrained, clear-skinned.

IS LAZIEST MAN ON EARTH

Sea-Faring Man Discovers Him in Person of Chief of the Solomon Islands.

In all probability the laziest man on earth has been discovered by seafaring men who had occasion to stop at the Solomon Islands of the East Indies not long ago. Those islands are inhabited by tribes of black men known to the sailors as Kanakas.

The ruler over the islands of Choisene and Caristoval is one of these Kanakas, known as Chief Sonoa. The Kanakas are almost invariably short and very heavily built, but Chief Sonoa is the shortest and fattest one of the bunch, weighing in the neighborhood of 365 pounds. He is not only the blackest, fattest and laziest, but he has more wives than any other chief in that neighborhood.

One of the sallors who visited these islands said that "his majesty would lie in the sands of the beach while his favorite wife would sit beside him and smoke. She would draw a mouth full of the smoke into her lungs. The chie; into her chief's mouth, and time after the small of my back and regulating time he would take it into his lungs to the passages of the kidney secretions. sleep. HOW TALKING SIGNS WORK

Mechanism of These Changing Electric Light Bulletins Is Intricate but Operates Easily.

The electric light talking sign was introduced to New York about ten years ago, one of the earliest if not the first one displayed being that at Broadway and Thirty-sixth street. By changing the firm or goods to be adver tised such a sign becomes a permanent investment. This possibility is of equal value to the advertiser, for it is of course less expensive to hire such service for a desired length of time than to erect a large sign for his own exclusive use.

One of these talking signs, which is 75 feet long, has letters 5 feet ligh and 4 feet broad. The space is divided into fifteen monograms, as they are called Each of these monograms contains forty-eight changes. That is, fortyeight letters and numerals can be shown in successively in that one 4x5 foot space. Each monogram space is perforated by forty lamps which form he forty-eight combinations. The changes are controlled by rather intricate arrangement which according to the Edison Monthly, consists of a motor with a commutator for each monogram. By a system of metal dogs, not unlike the Yale lock in principle, the arrangement can be so adjusted beforehand that the proper connections are made with each revolution of the communatator to form the letters and figures wanted in a certain order. Readjustment can be made as often as desired, so that if the owner needs to have a new message each night he has only to plan out the combinations.

Japanese Custom.

A common complaint made by tourists in Japan is that they obliged to pay for everything far higher prices than the natives are charged; or, in other words, that because they are foreigners, they are fleeced. But a glance at the social conditions by which the people have been educated would reveal the curious fact that throughout Japan's long period of isotion it was an accepted principle that the rich must live for the sake of the poor, and prices have always been based upon the purchaser's rank in society or upon his presumed ability to pay. This understanding remains largely in force today, being fully recognized and acted upon by all favored classes throughout the empire. The occidental, coming from lands where the reverse practically holds goodthe poor living for the sake of the rich -- naturally complaints of being robbed, as from his point of view he really is; but it is not because he is a foreigner, but because, being a tourist, he is presumably wealthy, and must, therefore, conform to the custom of the country which permits the poor to levy a tax upon the rich without thereby incurring the slightest imputa tion of dishonesty. - Arthur May Knapp, in December Atlantic,

George Junior Republic. The George Junior Republic is a community established in 1895, near Freeville, New York, by W. R. George as a method of reform in the treatment of dependent and deliquent children. The organization is similar to that of a miniature republic. It has a constitution based upon that of the United States, and the government of the community is carried on in the same way. At first the founder was president with other adults holding the most important offices, but from 1896 all offices have been held by citizens. Each citizen may work for the founder or for other citizens who contract for labor. All purchases are made with the republic's aluminum coin, later redeemed by United States currency. School is held and farming, carpentry, printing, care of the establishment, dressmaking, domestic service and cookery are the other activities followed. The entrance age is from twelve to eighteen.
